

TO THE MEDIA, WHITE RACE-HATE MURDER VICTIMS DON'T MATTER!

Picture the following scenario: Somewhere in Britain a gang of White racists go cruising the streets in search of a random non-White victim. They find one: a fifteen-year-old Asian schoolboy who's dragged terrified into their car. The Whites drive away with him to a quiet place where he's beaten and stabbed thirteen times with a knife, pleading for mercy all the while. Finally, the White racists take their victim, battered and bleeding profusely, for disposal on some wasteland. He's stripped, doused in gasoline and set on fire. His naked corpse is later found in a patch of mud where he managed to crawl in his final agony-filled moments in search of water to put out the flames.

Now, if that happened anywhere in Britain certain things would follow as sure as night follows day:

- The national media would shriek with horror and outrage as long and loudly as possible.
- The innocence and youth of the victim, the evil cruelty with which his promising life has been cut short, and the grief of his family and friends would be emphasized again and again.
- When the main coverage finally stopped, the media would regularly return to the story with news of the hunt for the murderers, their arrest, the continued suffering of the victim's friends and family, etc, etc.
- The eventual trial would be followed in detail and all the horrors of the crime prominently repeated.
- The guilty verdict and sentencing of the White racists would be the leading item in TV, newspapers and the internet that day and commentators would muse at length on how to overcome the scourge of White racism.
- The victim's name and exhaustive details of his death and suffering would be entered in the Holy Book of Minority Martyrs and regularly re-appear in the media in coming years.

But in reality the victim of this crime was WHITE and the media gave very little coverage to the story and his name is now almost unknown outside his Glasgow home. Why? It's obvious: because Kriss Donald, the victim of that horrific crime, was White and the gang of hate-filled racists who tortured and murdered him were Pakistani Muslims.

Compare the case of a couple of black victims who were murdered by Whites, Steven Lawrence and Anthony Walker. Their murders received overwhelming media coverage and they became national martyrs. We were never allowed to forget that they had been killed by Whites.

WHY THE MEDIA SILENCE?

TO THE MEDIA, WHITE RACE-HATE MURDER VICTIMS DON'T MATTER!

Picture the following scenario: Somewhere in Britain a gang of White racists go cruising the streets in search of a random non-White victim. They find one: a fifteen-year-old Asian schoolboy who's dragged terrified into their car. The Whites drive away with him to a quiet place where he's beaten and stabbed thirteen times with a knife, pleading for mercy all the while. Finally, the White racists take their victim, battered and bleeding profusely, for disposal on some wasteland. He's stripped, doused in gasoline and set on fire. His naked corpse is later found in a patch of mud where he managed to crawl in his final agony-filled moments in search of water to put out the flames.

Now, if that happened anywhere in Britain certain things would follow as sure as night follows day:

- The national media would shriek with horror and outrage as long and loudly as possible.
- The innocence and youth of the victim, the evil cruelty with which his promising life has been cut short, and the grief of his family and friends would be emphasized again and again.
- When the main coverage finally stopped, the media would regularly return to the story with news of the hunt for the murderers, their arrest, the continued suffering of the victim's friends and family, etc, etc.
- The eventual trial would be followed in detail and all the horrors of the crime prominently repeated.
- The guilty verdict and sentencing of the White racists would be the leading item in TV, newspapers and the internet that day and commentators would muse at length on how to overcome the scourge of White racism.
- The victim's name and exhaustive details of his death and suffering would be entered in the Holy Book of Minority Martyrs and regularly re-appear in the media in coming years.

But in reality the victim of this crime was WHITE and the media gave very little coverage to the story and his name is now almost unknown outside his Glasgow home. Why? It's obvious: because Kriss Donald, the victim of that horrific crime, was White and the gang of hate-filled racists who tortured and murdered him were Pakistani Muslims.

Compare the case of a couple of black victims who were murdered by Whites, Steven Lawrence and Anthony Walker. Their murders received overwhelming media coverage and they became national martyrs. We were never allowed to forget that they had been killed by Whites.

WHY THE MEDIA SILENCE?